3gp The three-gigabyte pixel (3gp) format is a video file format developed by the Video For Windows group at Microsoft. It is a highly compressed, low-quality video format. 3gp is often used to transfer video to and from portable devices and mobile phones. Its compressed file size is significantly smaller than that of other multimedia compression formats such as MP4 and mpeg4 (AVI). The format is intended to be suitable for mobile phones and portable media players. The format is based on the MPEG-4 Part 2 standard. The specification is called MPEG-4 Part 10 when it is produced by ISO/IEC and ISO 2d92ce491b
