Field of the Invention This invention relates to the pumping of water from subsurface reservoirs and is more particularly concerned with providing an improved pump suitable for pumping water from large bore wells drilled through unconsolidated soils and/or over soft unconsolidated strata, and more particularly to such a pump of the type having an impeller or screw disposed in a housing chamber, the housing being arranged so as to contain all of the working elements of the pump. 2. Description of the Prior Art It is known in the art that water can be produced from subsurface strata by pumping means from a well drilled through the strata. For this purpose, a circulating fluid is pumped by means of a pump through the well and back into the formation so that water can be withdrawn at the wellhead. It is often desirable to drill several large diameter wells through the same strata. When this is done, it is not convenient or economical to provide a separate pumping system for each well. Attempts to provide such a pumping system have not been entirely successful, particularly when the well is to be used for water production rather than gas production. Q: Why are all my cards not showing? I have cards like this in my Unity scene: And then when I select one of them, I can see them in the inspector but they don't appear in the scene. I have the StandardOutlineMixedMaterial.umd in my project and the ImageMaterial.umd. The image they're supposed to use is in the project folder. Why aren't they showing up? A: If your Inspector shows a null material for the image, you should enable Shader Graph (or
