In the upcoming Justice League, we'll see many returning characters from the Superman, Batman and Wonder Woman franchises; it's a universe that's been built up for years and years. But it's also a universe that's constantly changing and dynamic, and there will be different Easter Eggs for fans to stumble upon in every act. A ComicBook.com search of Justice League imagery from SDCC and from production artwork revealed the Easter Eggs we could be seeing on the big screen. Here are the dozen of Batman vs. Superman Easter Eggs from SDCC and from production artwork. DON'T MISS: How Hollywood and Big Business Screw over the Middle Class 1. Bruce Wayne's Way of Survival/Gotham's #1 Crime Boss Unconfirmed, but if Man of Steel reveals Mr. Oz is Lex Luthor's uncle, it should be an easy jump to assuming that the big bad of this movie, Doomsday, is the nephew of the biggest crime boss of our real-life Gotham. 2. Steel Armor Batman is likely going to be wearing the majority of his traditional DC Comics gear in this movie, but it's still possible he'll take the opportunity to check out his new "blacksmith-made" armor from Man of Steel. 3. Kryptonite Not much is known about Superman's powerset in the film, but it's likely we'll be seeing quite a few moves that are enhanced by his powerset. A big one could be that he has a certain resistance to Kryptonite that has to be overcome. 4. Lexa/Aquaman It is highly unlikely that Lexa will be the parent of Kal-El in this movie, but there's no reason she shouldn't pop up as Aquaman♦

An increase of natriuretic peptide levels is a powerful prognostic factor in chronic heart failure (HF). We hypothesized that natriuretic peptide levels might also reflect cardiovascular remodeling in essential hypertension (EH) and might be useful as a biomarker of elevated local renin production. In a double-blind, randomized, placebo-controlled study, plasma levels of atrial natriuretic peptide (ANP) and brain natriuretic peptide (BNP), cardiac output (CO), and renal blood flow (RBF) were measured in 44 EH patients, including a subset of patients with elevated (>25%) renin plasma concentrations (EPR) and in 18 healthy subjects (controls). Compared with controls, EH patients showed increased ANP (P 1cb139a0ed
