Niagara Falls Coun. Mark Blaich introduced a resolution urging a plan to save the shelter. "We owe it to the animals to do something," he said Tuesday. "We have to rally to save the SPCA. The community needs to do something."

Blaich said the city needs to put a plan in place so the SPCA could stay open when the current lease expires in October 2017, but the current lease for the location at 249 Kenilworth Ave. could be renewed. Earlier this year, the SPCA filed an application with the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to shelter some animals off-site. The SPCA said it was looking for a new location where it would be able to house the animals but the cost of renovating the Kenilworth Avenue location would be more than it's worth.

Blaich said the SPCA could be put up for sale so it could be re-used for another purpose. However, he said it's likely no one will be interested in buying the building because of the location. The resolution was unanimously approved and the city is asking the council to support Blaich's efforts to save the SPCA from closure. Niagara Falls has just 100 animals in the SPCA, according to the organization.Primary Sidebar Search Search this website House

Full Of Toy Boxes Are you a hoarder? I have a closet full of toy boxes to keep all my 'precious' toys from being lost in the house. But it is not as easy as that to explain what a toy box is, let me try to shed some light on it. A toy box is a wooden box that is made for children to store their toys in. 3e33713323
