An image can be created by pasting a selection, imported directly, or imported by pasting a photograph into a document. The controls include tools to work with selections, paths, layers, filters, layers, and creating and editing images with the Brush tool. The built-in user interface, or UI, enables users to create images using the tools that come with Photoshop. The interface looks cluttered, especially when used by new users. The clutter of the UI will get somewhat streamlined in the following chapters. However, if you are not comfortable with the UI, you can move the user interface from the top to the bottom of the screen.

-CNN-based algorithm. The proposed approach requires the number of manually defined labels to be three and achieves a mean IOU of 0.757. For each label, its corresponding segmentation is shown in Fig. 2{ref-type="fig"}. As can be seen, there are some small regions that cannot be correctly segmented, which is mainly due to the ambiguous color range of the car + attached items combination. Finally, the classification results are summarized in Table 3{ref-type="table"} and a comparison with previous approaches is shown in Table 4{ref-type="table"}. Challenge Case 3: We demonstrate the effectiveness of the proposed algorithm on this challenging case. Fig. 3{ref-type="fig"} demonstrates the input image and ground truth. It is shown that the car is incorrectly segmented, as the only useful information in the image is the color of the car. In order to correctly segment the car, the proposed approach also requires the label for the car as shown in Fig. 3{ref-type="fig"}. In addition, only a few pixels around the car are segmented due to a lack of other useful information. The final classification results are shown in Table 3{ref-type="table"}. Fig. 3 Input image and ground truth Overall analysis {#Sec16} ----- We perform experiments on two benchmark datasets and one challenging dataset. Four segmentation algorithms are used as the baseline. The proposed method is compared to the baseline methods, and the comparison results are summarized in Tables 5{ref-type="table"}, 6{ref-type="table"}, 7{ref-type="table"} and 8{ref-type="table"}. The experimental results indicate that the proposed CNN-based method can achieve a satisfactory performance. The mean IOU of the proposed method is significantly higher than the baseline methods and comparable to the best-reported method. This demonstrates the effectiveness of the proposed method. It can be seen that, for the car in the following two challenge cases, the proposed algorithm still performs well. This is mainly because the characteristics of the proposed algorithm in this paper are still suitable for the car segmentation
