But, a ferry service was due to start from Seaham on June 30th, but operators of the service were forced to call off plans to run the service after a raft of problems. The season ended last month and ferry operators have been in talks with various Marine Management Organisation about how to carry on during the summer season. Dave Hudson, of SGN Marine, which has operated the service since the end of last year, said: "We are continuing to work on how we can best operate the service in the future. "We look forward to the start of another season in the summer when the annual Open Championships at Hetton benefit from the extra visitors." Mr Hudson was unavailable for comment this week but it is understood he has been discussing options with the Marine Management Organisation. The service is managed by Marine Management Organisation and cost £23 per adult and £17 per child. David Clarke, managing director of the company, said: "The summer season at Seaham has been postponed, but we are hoping to find a way of carrying on, still using ferry boats, and trying to provide as many services as we can. "We will review progress after the summer to see what type of service could be offered." The service was re-launched by Queen Elizabeth II on December 10th, 2002 when she visited Seaham after the opening of the East Coast Mainline.Introduction Drawing.com has a new Competitions page that shows a number of ongoing drawing competitions with US$1,000+ in prize money and other awesome goodies.
